REGISTERED REPRESENTATIVE'S COMPENSATION

A registered representative's compensation is based upon a fixed revenue sharing arrangement. The Firm does not offer differential payouts for different products or revenue production levels; these practices could result in a material conflict by providing an incentive for a registered representative to offer products with higher payouts, or to execute trades for the purpose of increasing production levels.

MUTUAL FUNDS

The following breakpoint disclosures are sourced from FINRA's website: www.finra.org. We believe the website to be reliable but cannot guarantee its accuracy.

Before investing in mutual funds, it is important that you, the customer, understand the sales charges, expenses, and management fees that will be charged, as well as the breakpoint discounts to which a customer may be entitled. Understanding these charges and breakpoint discounts will assist you in identifying the best investment for your needs and may help reduce the cost of your investment(s). This Disclosure Document will provide general background information about these charges and discounts. However, sales charges, expenses, management fees, and breakpoint discounts vary from mutual fund to mutual fund. Therefore, you should discuss these issues with your registered representative and review each mutual fund's Prospectus and Statement of Additional Information (which are available from your registered representative) to obtain specific information regarding charges and breakpoint discounts associated with a particular mutual fund.

Sales Charges

Investors that purchase mutual funds must make certain choices, including which funds to purchase and which class share is most advantageous. Each mutual fund has a specified investment strategy. Customers need to consider whether a mutual fund's investment strategy is compatible with their investment objectives. Additionally, most mutual funds offer different share classes. Although each share class represents a similar interest in the mutual fund's portfolio, the mutual fund will charge different fees and expenses depending upon the share class. As a rule, Class A shares carry a "front-end" sales charge or "load" that is deducted from the investment at the time the fund shares are bought. This sales charge is a percentage of the total purchase price. As explained below, many mutual funds offer volume discounts to the front-end sales charge assessed on Class A shares at certain pre-determined levels of investment; these are called "breakpoint discounts."

In contrast, Class B and Class C shares usually do not carry any front-end sales charges. Instead, investors that purchase Class B or Class C shares pay asset-based sales charges, which may be higher than the charges associated with Class A shares. Depending upon the rules of the particular mutual fund, investors that purchase Class B and Class C shares may also be required to pay a sales charge, known as a "contingent deferred sales charge," when they sell their shares.

Breakpoint Discounts

Most mutual funds offer investors a variety of ways to qualify for breakpoint discounts on the sales charge associated with the purchase of Class A shares. In general, most mutual funds provide breakpoint discounts to investors who make large purchases at one time. The extent of the discount depends upon the size of the purchase; as the amount of the purchase increases, the percentage used to determine the sales load decreases. In fact, the entire sales charge may be waived for investors that make very large purchases of Class A shares. Mutual fund prospectuses contain tables that illustrate the available breakpoint discounts and the investment levels at which breakpoint discounts apply. Additionally, most mutual funds allow investors to qualify for breakpoint discounts based upon current holdings from prior purchases through "Rights of Accumulation," and future purchases, based upon "Letters of Intent." This Document provides general information regarding Rights of Accumulation and Letters of Intent. However, mutual funds have different rules regarding the availability of Rights of Accumulation and Letters of Intent. Therefore, you should discuss these issues with your registered representatives and review the mutual fund Prospectus to determine the specific terms upon which a mutual fund offers Rights of Accumulation or Letters of Intent.

Rights of Accumulation - Many mutual funds allow investors to include the value of previous purchases of the same fund, or another fund within the same fund family, with the value of the current purchase, to qualify for breakpoint discounts. Moreover, mutual funds allow investors to count existing holdings in multiple accounts, such as IRAs or accounts at other broker-dealers, to qualify for breakpoint discounts. Therefore, if you have accounts at other broker-dealers and wish to take advantage of the balances in these accounts to qualify for a breakpoint discount, you must advise your registered representative about those balances. You may need to provide documentation establishing the holdings in those other accounts to your registered representatives if you wish to rely upon the balances in accounts at another broker-dealer.

In addition, many mutual funds allow investors to count the value of holdings in accounts of certain related parties, such as spouses or children, to qualify for breakpoint discounts. Each mutual fund has different rules that govern when relatives may rely upon each other's holdings to qualify for breakpoint discounts. Customers should consult with their registered representatives or review the mutual fund's Prospectus or Statement of Additional Information to determine what these rules are for the fund family in which they are investing. If you wish to rely upon the holdings of related parties to qualify for a breakpoint discount, you should advise your registered representative about these accounts. You may need to provide documentation to your registered representative if you wish to rely upon balances in accounts at another broker-dealer.

Mutual funds also follow different rules to determine the value of existing holdings. Some funds use the current Net Asset Value (“NAV”) of existing investments in determining whether an investor qualifies for a breakpoint discount. However, a small number of funds use the historical cost, which is the cost of the initial purchase, to determine eligibility for breakpoint discounts. If the mutual fund uses historical costs, a customer may need to provide account records, such as confirmation statements or monthly statements, to qualify for a breakpoint discount based upon previous purchases. You should consult with your registered representative and review the mutual fund's prospectus to determine whether the mutual fund uses either NAV or historical costs to determine breakpoint eligibility.

- Letters of Intent - Most mutual funds allow investors to qualify for breakpoint discounts by signing a Letter of Intent, which commits the investor to purchasing a specified amount of Class A shares within a defined period, usually 13 months. For example, if an investor plans to purchase $50,000 worth of Class A shares over a period of 13 months, but each individual purchase would not qualify for a breakpoint discount, the investor could sign a Letter of Intent at the time of the first purchase and receive the breakpoint discount associated with $50,000 investments on the first and all subsequent purchases. Additionally, some funds offer retroactive Letters of Intent that allow investors to rely upon purchases in the recent past to qualify for a breakpoint discount. However, if an investor fails to invest the amount required by the Letter of Intent, the fund is entitled to retroactively deduct the correct sales charges based upon the amount that the investor invested. If you intend to make several purchases within a 13-month period, you should consult with your registered representative and the mutual fund Prospectus to determine if it would be beneficial to sign a Letter of Intent.

Clearly, understanding the availability of breakpoint discounts is important because it may allow an investor to purchase Class A shares at a lower price. The availability of breakpoint discounts may save money and may also affect the decision as to the appropriate share class in which to invest. Therefore, you should discuss the availability of breakpoint discounts with your registered representative and carefully review the mutual fund Prospectus and its Statement of Additional Information, which can be obtained from your registered representative, when choosing among the share classes offered by a mutual fund.

ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING REQUIREMENTS

THE USA PATRIOT ACT

The USA Patriot Act, signed by President Bush in 2001, is designed to detect, deter and punish terrorists in the United States and abroad. The Act imposes new anti-money laundering requirements on brokerage firms and financial institutions. By April 24, 2002, all brokerage firms were required to have new comprehensive Anti-Money Laundering programs.

To help you understand these efforts, we want to provide you with some information about money laundering and our steps to implement the USA Patriot Act.

WHAT IS MONEY LAUNDERING?

Money Laundering is the process of disguising illegally obtained money so that the funds appear to come from legitimate sources or activities. Money laundering occurs in connection with a wide variety of crimes, including, but not limited to, illegal arms sales, drug trafficking, robbery, fraud, racketeering and terrorism.

HOW BIG IS THE PROBLEM AND WHY IS IT IMPORTANT?

The use of the U.S. financial system by criminals to facilitate terrorism or other crimes could well taint our financial markets. Per the U.S. State Department, one recent estimate puts the amount of worldwide money laundering activity at $1 trillion a year.

WHAT ARE WE REQUIRED TO DO TO ELIMINATE MONEY LAUNDERING?

Under new rules required by the USA Patriot Act, our Anti-Money Laundering program must designate a special compliance officer, set up employee training, conduct independent audits and establish policies and procedures to detect and report suspicious transactions and ensure compliance with the new laws.

As part of our required program, we may ask you to provide various identification documents or other information. Until you provide the information or documents we need, we may not be able to open an account or effect any transactions for you.

We at R.M. Stark thank you for your patience and hope that you will support us in our efforts to deny terrorist groups access to America's financial systems.
